

- A. Alvazzi del Frate. Victims of crime in the developing world. UNICRI publication No 57, Rome 1998.

Table of Contents

Preface

Acknowledgements

National co-ordinators and contributors from developing countries

Introduction

- About crime rates and the dark figure

Chapter 1

The International Crime Victim Survey in the Developing World

- Methodology of the ICVS in developing countries
- The carrying out of the ICVS in developing countries

Chapter 2

Experiences of Victimisation

- An overview of victimisation in the developing world
- Country profiles of crime
- Corruption and consumer fraud
- Trends in victimisation: 1992-1996

Chapter 3

Correlates of Victimisation

- Car recovery rates
- Burglaries involving damage and actual theft
- Personal injuries as the consequence of an assault
- Place of victimisation
- Offender's profile
- Weapons used in committing crime
- Victim support

Chapter 4

Crime Seriousness and Reporting to the Police

- Perceived seriousness of victimisation experienced
- Was it a crime?
- Reporting to the police
- Reporting corruption and consumer fraud
- Reasons for reporting
- Women victims and reporting to the police

- Satisfaction with the police

Chapter 5

Citizens' Attitudes and Fears

- Satisfaction with the police in controlling crime
- Attitudes to punishment
- Fear of crime

Chapter 6

Crime Prevention Mechanisms

- Crime prevention at the household level
- Burglar alarms
- Possession of firearms for crime prevention

Chapter 7

Selected Issues for Discussion

- Crime and development
- 1992-1996 trends
- Discussion on women victims

Bibliography